

Professor Ron Heeren
President of the International Mass Spectrometry Foundation
M4I, University of Maastricht

09.07.2026

Dear Professor Ron Heeren,

Liverpool Convention Bureau and the city of Liverpool are delighted to be considered as the host city for the International Mass Spectrometry Conference in 2030.

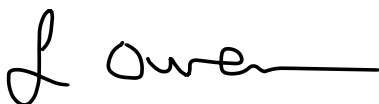

Liverpool is a world-class destination with an enviable track record in hosting international conferences. You can be assured of the expertise and dedication of our award-winning Liverpool Convention Bureau team. We can support this event with our full range of free services, including securing accommodation, providing social, partner and cultural programmes and introductions to local partners. Our expert team can help with everything from organising and attending familiarisation visits for the Committee, to working with you on marketing support to attract delegates to your conference in Liverpool.

Conferences benefit from the fantastic co-operative spirit of the city and the hotels, attractions and venues work together to help you get the best out of your event and to ensure delegates have the best possible experience in our city. We pull out all the stops when it comes to making incredible events happen.

Liverpool is a vibrant, inclusive and friendly city. The people of Liverpool are famous for their friendly nature; you can be assured of a warm welcome here. I'm certain that the 2030 conference will be a huge success should Liverpool be the chosen host city.

We would be delighted to welcome you and your participants to our magnificent city.

Warm wishes,

Lisa Owen
Liverpool Convention Bureau Manager
Liverpool Convention Bureau

Cunard Building,
Water Street, Liverpool, L3 1DS
lowen@liverpoolcityregiondp.com